A San Martín de la Vega, a park was born from the ambition to bring the magic of cinema to life. In April 2002, Warner Bros. Movie World Madrid opened its gates with a grand ceremony attended by 10,000 guests, including Hollywood stars Bo Derek and Christophe Lambert. This inauguration marked a significant moment for Spanish tourism, establishing a new landmark just 25 kilometers southeast of Madrid. The initial management contract with Six Flags lasted 99 years, but early operational challenges led to a pivotal shift in control.

In November 2004, after facing substantial losses and growing debt under Six Flags' management, the Community of Madrid, holding a 40% stake, terminated the management contract. This decision was driven by the desire to promote the economy of southern Madrid and boost regional tourism. The first season under the new management team showed promising results, with increased visitor numbers and operating profits around 2 million euros, a stark contrast to the previous year's 4 million euro loss. This transition stabilized the park and set the stage for its future growth.

The park officially changed its name to Parque Warner Madrid in early 2006, reflecting its evolving identity. In 2007, Parques Reunidos took over management, bringing expertise that further enhanced the visitor experience. By August 7, 2010, the park welcomed its 10 millionth visitor, a symbolic milestone that confirmed its enduring appeal to Spanish families and tourists from across Europe. This achievement underscored the park's success in creating a lasting destination for entertainment.

In May 2023, the park introduced Batman Gotham City Escape, its first major new roller coaster since opening. This modern attraction injected new energy into the park, appealing to thrill-seekers and fans alike. Today, Parque Warner Madrid stands as a vibrant theme park divided into five thematic zones on 150 hectares, inspired by Warner Bros. films. From Hollywood Boulevard to Cartoon Village, each area offers an immersive journey into the world of cinema, making it a must-visit destination for all ages.

AZ ÉLMÉNY

Stepping through the gates of Parque Warner Madrid, visitors are immediately transported into a world where cinema comes alive. The architecture of Hollywood Boulevard sets the tone, with iconic facades and bright lights creating a sense of anticipation. The air is filled with the promise of adventure, as the park's layout invites exploration of its diverse thematic zones. Each step reveals new details, from the meticulously crafted movie sets to the lively atmosphere of the attractions.

As you move deeper into the park, the light shifts to reflect the mood of each zone, from the vibrant colors of Cartoon Village to the dramatic shadows of DC Super Heroes World. The atmosphere is charged with excitement, as sounds of laughter and screams blend into a symphony of fun. The promise of the visit is clear: a day filled with unforgettable moments, where every corner holds a surprise. Whether you're riding a roller coaster or strolling through a movie set, the experience is designed to captivate and delight.
